Tencent Chairman Pony Ma Named 2004 Global Business Influentials and Awarded the 4th Bauhinia Cup Outstanding Entrepreneur

(Shenzhen, December 15, 2004) Pony Ma, Chairman and CEO of Tencent Holdings Limited (0700), has been named 2004 Global Business Influentials by TIME magazine and CNN International. Pony Ma was also awarded the 4th Bauhinia Cup Outstanding Entrepreneur from Hong Kong Polytechnic University recently.

The 25 Global Business Influentials are selected for their innovative management strategies and a commitment to transparency and clear accountability. Pony Ma was named for his vision in founding China's largest instant-messaging service company and innovative Internet and mobile value-added services that Tencent offers. Another Global Business Influential, Li Dong Sheng, is an independent non-executive director of Tencent Holdings Limited.

Ma and Li are the only Chinese honorees on the list, among other business leaders such as Jeffrey Immelt of GE, Chuck Prince of Citigroup, and Jeroen Van Der Veer of Royal Dutch Shell.

Pony Ma also recently received the 4th Bauhinia Cup Outstanding Entrepreneur Award. This bi-annual award was organized by Hong Kong Polytechnic University to acknowledge the significant contribution made by Chinese entrepreneurs to national economic development. This year, 15 entrepreneurs including Pony Ma received the award. Honorees were selected based on their entrepreneurship, business development capabilities, long-term strategies and innovative initiatives, as well as the company's competitive advantages and overall performance.

Mr Ma said he was honored and pleased to receive the honors on behalf of the company. It was a recognition of employees' dedication and hard work and the company would continue to strive for excellence in future.
